Speaker

The speaker Rachel spoke of the impor- tance of foreign aid and the Morgan project. And did you know she is only a sophomore at Tufts? Do you know why they are called the Jumbos? Jumbo the elephant, dates back to 1885. Circus show- man P.T. Barnum was an early trustee and benefactor of Tufts and he donated the stuffed hide of Jumbo to the university. For 86 years, Jumbo stood in Barnum Hall and was a veritable mecca on campus.

Worldwide Adventures of Handly

This hair-raising adventure takes place in the last century: I was a newly minted legal eagle unleashed in Boston. Just passed the bar and that was the only bar in the city that didn't have a Harvey Wallbanger waiting for me when I walked through the door. My closing arguments were well bellowed and my suits were bell bottomed; my lapels wide enough to be landing strips for my Beechcraft; and ties the size of a picnic blanket. But this adventure is about hair. It was the Dawning of the Age of the Eighties and I had a low-rise pompadour that wouldn't pass zoning today and mutton chops that that John Quincy Adams would die for. Hair became the national pastime. It seemed overnight that barbershops were calling themselves salons and charging a jaw-dropping $20 per cut!!! With the stakes so high, I wasn't surprised when phenom model DayGlo walked into my office out for revenge. Well, she didn't actually walk into the office. We chatted in the hallway. It seems a certain Newbury Street stylist had super-permed DayGlo, rendering most doorways inaccessible. Worse, the woman known as "Charlie's Fourth Angel" was dropped from the Jordan Marsh leisure suit ad campaign because her hair was, and here I quote, "uncroppable". We arrived in court loaded for hair (GAK, see what I did there, Carla?) when I noticed that our judge resembled Telly Savalas - not a follicle to be found. Unlike Kojak, his honor didn't "love ya, baby" and tossed us out of the courtroom. Not even close by a hair, her suit was hirsute but I was wearing the hair shirt and tried to make amends with some hair of the hound. "Care for a Harvey Wallbanger at Daisey Buchanan's?" I queried. DayGlo declined and I attended the sidebar solo. Can't win 'em all. Till we convene again. Until our next adventure friends.
