SPEAKER CORNER

Thunderous applause for Bethany Blake and typical one hand clap for Andrew. They spoke on the mission of Harborlight Homes and the new Learning Center at Anchor Point. Always good things going on with Harborlight and their pursuit of housing for all types of people.

Dianne played a trivia game using the "home" theme based on HCP as today's speaker. Most of the people got the questions wrong but I will protect the names of the unknowing; A couple people answered right, they too will be shrouded in secrecy

Speaker:

Andrew Defranza Highlights: Intro of HCP's star performing development person, Bethany Blake Bethany conducted a survey among the crowd to demonstrate the number of housing units needed vs. the few spots awarded to the people fortunate enough to make it through the process and get picked in the lottery Housing applicants have multiple jobs, perpetuating the challenge to stability of the family unit (no head of household is around to raise and foster other family members)

Problem on the north shore: "essential jobs" don't pay a sufficient wage to afford the average 2-bedroom rent

MUST READ BOOK - The Color of Law by Richard Rothstein. If you don't want it, too bad you will get one anyway DAnchor Point was made possible by re-zoning, something Beverly City Council fully supported

Big news: there is plans for the addition of a 3rd building, funded by a campaign that is 40% to the goal. It will be called the Lighthouse Center and provide community services including daycare, education, possible job skill training, and other family support for residents of Anchor Point

Weekly Raffle: ticket drawn by Andrew Defranza and he pulled the joker, woo hoo!

Meeting adjourned at 1:36

Submitted by Adam Winn latness is our motto for notes, SHESH!

Sue Gabriel spoke on Rotaract and Interact Clubs. See notes to help with these programs.

Al Temkin... ready for closeup

Giants fans respond to great start of season. Beat Philly!!!
