Speaker:

Brian Pellinan, Montserrat College of Art President

20 years ago came into Beverly by train for interview and fell in love with students/faculty was inspired to have found his home.

Montserrat College turns 55 this year NSMT to Cabot Street

Philosophy is to be nimble and evolve for 250+ students.

Change and evolve with times and prepare students for real work experience and skills.

Physical changes as well, reducing building surplus and streamlining core values.

They don't teach how to draw or paint but how to think.

raised Question how does school evolve? In 90's traditional majors such as painting, illustration were the norm. Now Animators, Game Designers, Toys, Id Programs are the norm.

You cannot create passion/creativity but you can turn that passion into a rewarding life in the arts.

Striving to become a first choice school for prospective students.

Start a comic/animation festival

A student working program for skills

How to build towards future? Help from a 2.5 million grant a few years ago to help fund projects

Student information: graduate typically do 1099 work as free lancers or vendors, up to 90% of graduates.

Most start new businesses or start ups

School becomes more efficient with space for 250 NOT 350 students

Despite some comments is a thriving college with a vibrant student base

Example of graduate is Zoe, who makes Space Suits using ultrasonic programming.

Largest fund raiser of the year, Artraeous is coming up soon on April 25. Tickets still available support the Arts

Questions included how do students build brand. On school website there are tools and a page that lists Alum and contact for advice and mentoring.

Is school planning an animation festival. Its in the works.

Moiph also added he hired 4 students to help with a special project and they were a great source. showed up on time, acted professional and did a great job. Can't say that about Moiph.
